SCOPE OF THE JOURNAL

The Journal of Communication Disorders publishes original articles on problems related to the various disorders of communication broadly defined. The Journal's interests include the biological foundations of communicative processes related to disorders of communication, as well as psychopathological, psychodynamic, diagnostic, and therapeutic aspects of communication disorders. Experimental reports, case studies, theoretical papers, book reviews, and notes are also considered.

SSP ... shedding new light on the problems and challenges of Scholarly Publishing.

Those of us involved in producing and distributing scholarly books and journals have a lot to learn from each other. Together, through SSP, we can solve common problems and meet the challenge of insuring the future well-being of scholarly publishing. For information about SSP and its annual meeting, call or write:

Some of the foremost publications in Communication and its Disorders

Linguistic Investigations of Aphasia*

Ruth Lesser, University of Newcastle upon Tyne, England

Written for graduate students and clinical/academic researchers in speech and language pathology, linguistics, psychology and neurology, this is one of the first efforts to put studies of aphasia into perspective, both in terms of clinical studies of aphasia and linguistic studies on non-deviant language. Dr. Lesser's collection successfully integrates them into a comprehensive, understandable whole.

Phonological Disability in Children*

David Ingram, University of British Columbia

"... this book is an extremely valuable contribution to the area of deviant child phonology at its present stage of development. It brings together in a condensed, organized, readable manner, virtually all that is ... written about phonological disability in children."

1976 176 pages $13.95 Paper 0-444-19506-8

Amer-Ind Gestural Code Based on Universal American Indian Hand Talk

Madge Skelly, St. Louis University and St. Louis University School of Medicine, with Lorraine Schinsky and illustrated by John Dunivent

Various conditions—aphasia, apraxia, developmental retardation, radical surgery—often damage the patient's symbolic/linguistic capacities to such an extent that the use of both verbal rehabilitation procedures and the teaching of gestural codes which are linguistically structured are rendered futile. Success has been attained by bypassing symbolic/linguistic channels for concrete signs. Amer-Ind gestural code, which is basically a series of mime gestures, was developed by the Indians of North America to transcend language barriers between tribes, and is immediately understood by the uninstructed viewer at an 80-90% level. Dr. Skelly presents a basic, contemporary Amer-Ind sign vocabulary illustrated for clinical use. She thoroughly reports on recent investigations into the modern use of Amer-Ind by persons who cannot speak, including how it may be used as a tool for triggering the redevelopment of language for some patients. Skelly's work is an essential reference for all clinicians working with speechless adults and children.

1979 494 pages $34.95 Cloth 0-444-00333-9

$18.95 Paper 0-444-00331-2

Language and Disadvantage*

John R. Edwards, St. Francis Xavier University, Nova Scotia

Edwards examines the relevant issues of "disadvantage" in speech and language—causes, learning ability, socialization, theories and misconceptions—and comes to terms with its many implications for the language development of school-aged children.

1979 172 pages $22.50 Cloth 0-444-19471-1

$11.95 Paper 0-444-19470-3

Working with LARSP*

David Crystal, University of Reading, England

This work sets out a new procedure for the treatment of grammatical disability—the Language Assessment, Remediation and Screening Procedure. It details procedures for sampling, transcription, grammatical analysis, profiling, profile interpretation and ways to devise remedial programs.
